STEVEN COVEY SEVEN HABITS

Imagine a school morning where everyone knows what to do & is ready on time. Sound too good to be true? Well, it's possible! By getting organized with the 7 Habits at home, your child can begin to learn the skill of organization. Using Habit #1, Be Proactive, talk with your child about initiative & responsibility. For example, help them with what they will need for school the next day. In the beginning, writing a list may help! Have them gather the non-perishable items and put them in his/her backpack the night before! In addition, have them pick out their clothes and decide whether they will have hot lunch or bring one from home. Organizing all of this the night before can help to make your mornings more organized. Have fun practicing being proactive!

THANK YOU to everyone who came out to our Title Math Parent Night!!!

The students enjoyed playing Math games with their teachers, parents, and friends. We had a great time and we hope you can continue to play the games at home.
